

INSANE POPULATION OF COUNTY IS 147; INCREASE OVER 1918

Rock county's insane population is one greater than it was a year ago today, according to Supt. Archie Cullen of the county asylum, who says there are now 147 inmates of the institution as against 146 in 1918. This is contrary to the report of most of the state charitable institutions which show a decided decrease in population.

The total number of inmates of the Rock county asylum in 1918-19 was increased by 21 commitments from other institutions and from the county court. The loss in population during the year totaled 20, including 3 who were paroled, 12 who died, and 5 who escaped. The present enrollment is made up of 75 males and 72 females. The state institutions for the insane had a population one year ago of 1,415, as compared with 1,386 on Sept. 1st of this year. This is a decrease of 29. The county institution for the chronic insane had a population one year ago of 853, as compared with 854 this year. This is an increase of 1. Taken for the year the state board of control believes this is one of the most remarkable showings that have been shown for several years insanity was increasing year by year.

During the past year there has been an increase of 20 in the institutions for the feeble-minded. The population one year ago was 1,115 as compared to 1,135 this year. The penal institutions show a slight decrease in population. One year ago the population at the penal institutions 1,936 as compared with 1,926 September 1. The state public school at Sparta has increased 55 during the last year and now has a population of 565.

RAINS MAKE GROUND READY FOR PLOWING

With the exception of light frosts which occurred about September 12, the past week was favorable for all agricultural interest, according to W. F. Stewart of the United States department of agriculture. The southern part of the state was visited by moderate to heavy rains, which relieved the drought in that section and improved pasture. Late potatoes, tobacco and some truck crops which had not yet matured. The rains also put the ground in good condition for plowing and farmers in all sections are seeding winter wheat and rye as rapidly as labor conditions will permit.

Site filling, corn cutting and husking, picking cranberries, cutting tobacco, gathering sugar beets, threshing, cutting second crop of hay and seed clover and other farm activities progressed under favorable conditions. Corn harvest is well along and much of the crop is now safe from frost injury. Threshing is rapidly completed and more than half of the cranberry and tobacco crops are gathered. Some late potatoes are being dug with fair to good yields generally.

WATER 25 CENTS A GLASS
London.—At a fashionable hotel here one of the feminine guests at a dinner, instead of having wine like other members of the party, asked for water, for which a charge of 25 cents was made.

"We must make our profits on beverages," explained the manager of the hotel when the matter was called to his attention. "Unless people drink we cannot make a profit, and therefore cannot carry on our business."

The Advertising Expert

By R. S. Alexander
"Dad, that Mr. Smith you run around with is listed in the telephone book as an advertising specialist. That sounds good to me. I'd like to know how to be one."

"Well, Bill," said Dad, "Smith's coming over tonight and you can tackle him yourself."

So when Smith arrived, Bill was right after him.
"There are all sorts of jobs," said Smith, "from a plain writer of advertising to an advertising manager. The advertising manager is employed by a manufacturing company or store to manage its advertising. He is a part of the business just the same as the sales manager. He plans and oversees all the advertising."

"An advertising agent is more like a lawyer or a doctor. He has a business of his own. If a firm is too small to maintain its own advertising department, it hires an advertising agent, and he manages the whole thing, preparing the ads and placing them in newspapers, magazines, street cars, and on billboards. There are 250 different firms and individuals listed in the Chicago Telephone Directory as 'Advertising Agents'; so you see it is a big business."

"What must a fellow know to make good?"
"You must first know people; know how they think and feel and what will reach them. You must know how to sell goods. Advertising is a form of salesmanship. Experience as a salesman is a great help. You should be able to write clean-cut, straight-forward, forcible, every-day English."

"How can I get this training?"
"Learn to write in school and then if possible, take a course in advertising in a good school of commerce. Remember, though, that the main thing will be to get the real experience in the selling and advertising of goods."

"There are some good magazines you might get: 'Associated Advertising,' 'Merchants,' 'Bark Building,' 'Advertiser,' 'Printers Ink,' 183 Madison Avenue, New York; 'The Advertising Age,' 17 East 24th Street, New York; 'Advertising and Selling,' 381 Fourth Avenue, New York."

SCHOOL FACULTY TO GET ACQUAINTED

WHAT GIRLS CAN BE

A barrage to break down the formality of the affair, such as shaking hands in a paper bag, shaking until the bag breaks, and hunting the person who has your name pinned onto him, will be the opening feature of the faculty reception which will be held at the high school this evening.

At least 100 guests are expected to take part in the first social function of the school year. The faculty members of the high school, vocational school, training school, grade schools and the board of education, have been invited.

Each group will be asked to put on a stunt, the group that makes the most noise and attracts the most attention will be pronounced the winner.

Refreshments will be served and dancing will be a part of the entertainment. The principals of the various schools make up the committee on arrangements.

WHAT GIRLS CAN BE

Secretary of a Community Center

By Elizabeth Mateer
It is one thing to accept a position that somebody has already made for you; it is another to make one for yourself. It is one thing to work amid the dust and noise of thousands of similar workers; it is another to work in fields where the grass is still long and green.

Right now a new need is being met; a new profession for girls is being opened.

Human nature requires that every community have its center. It may be the post office or corner store; it may have been the saloon. Whatever it is, it surely is worthy of recognition. Progressive cities are realizing this, and are establishing community center clubs, fostering community spirit, and building good, wholesome community centers.

Such work requires leaders. Intelligent, enthusiastic young ladies are chosen as secretaries. Such a secretary must have an attractive, winning personality; she must be a good mixer; she must know how to manage people tactfully; she must have executive ability and, above all, the rare quality of initiative.

What would her duties be? The answer to that question is exactly what makes the work so fascinating. She must decide herself. Her one big duty is to work for the betterment of the community. She may see a thousand ways to do it. Promoting and managing clubs, evening study classes, classes for mothers, playgrounds, outdoor sports, indoor sports, community picnics—in fact, everything from chaletaus to baby shows—these may be just a few of her activities.

If there is no municipal community center where you live, get busy, stir things up, and have one. The school houses are usually used until the city can afford a regular community house. Write to the United States Bureau of Education in Washington for Bulletin No. 31, telling how to build a community center.

In 1918, Washington, D. C., had four community center secretaries, and was preparing to take on eight more. Other cities are following.

Patrol Wagon Rounds up Aldermen for Meeting

Beverly, Mass.—Aldermen of this city were stationed at a somewhat alarmed recently when the police "hurry up" wagon drew up before their doors and the driver inquired for them. It was not to the police station that they were brought, however, but to the city hall, where the chairman was very anxious to have the sale of a piece of property to the city ratified and took this means of getting a quorum. The meeting lasted three minutes.

THE LABOR CONFERENCE.

The labor conference called by President Wilson for October 9 to discuss ways and means of bringing capital and labor to a better understanding should bring important results. It is the hope of the nation that the whole labor question will be put upon a better footing.
The president has named a number of prominent business men to sit with 22 representatives of labor in conference. If these men keep constantly in the foreground of their minds the needs of the general public and do not let their selfish interests influence their decisions, good will come of the meeting. If they consider only their own interests, the great mass of people will not get a square deal. The conference should assist our industrial evolution along constructive lines for the common welfare.

Destructive influences are at work in this country.
We all know that. To merely preach against them will not defeat them. They must be met with vigorous opposition in which sane labor, fair-minded capital and the main body of the citizenship can join. The opportunity for wiping out the radical—the destroyer of American institutions—will be presented.

Labor has been more or less infected by radicalism and in some cases has shown signs of unreasonableness.
However, the American spirit of loyalty and the American principles of liberty remain in the hearts of the workers and the fog of radicalism is being lifted through their deep-seated hold on our citizens.

The fact that conservative labor and liberal capital have consented to lay their cards on the table and throw out the problems before them gives encouragement to the general public which is really the sufferer in the situation which has grown out of the reconstruction period.

The conference has one of the most difficult tasks imposed upon a public body and it is not to be supposed that every move will be harmonious. Disagreements are bound to arise. But problems confront us and we have to buckle down to the task of solving them in the best way for the benefit of the whole nation.

During the war, capital and labor showed the fine patriotic spirit that has made America the greatest nation in the world. They tackled a big task and completed it with credit. The task before them now is as great if not greater and confidence is felt that at the conclusion of the conference a program which will sweep away many difficulties will be adopted.

THE PASSIONATE PATRIOTS.

The exploit of Gabriele D'Annunzio, writer of erotic poetry and soldier in the great war, in capturing Fiume at the head of a band of irregular Italian soldiers, and driving out the small British and French forces, is one more amazing incident in a hectic period.

One of the results of the war is a crop of passionate patriots. These are the men who lose their mental balance, their sense of proportion, in the feverish obsession that unless they do something of a bold and desperate character, their country will be shamed and most outrageously put upon.

The almost frantic manner in which these flaming spirits leap to the defense of honor is a bit theatrical.
Always there are plenty of followers for such as these —the appeal is elemental. We know. Once in a while in our own country we see something like it, when an exponent of the mysgawd school of politics flashes on the stage before us and then off again.

Mr. D'Annunzio will cool off one of these days, when some firm, unemotional person in authority grasps him firmly by the collar and leads him out of the limelight.
His less turbulent countrymen, in responsible positions, are not so anxious to flout and insult friendly governments, even though they would like Fiume for Italy.

If the world is to get settled, and stay that way, each nation will have to repress its selfish ambitions in some measure. In doing so, it must restrain its passionate patriots, who are apt to prove very real nuisances.

PAY SPECIAL WATER ASSESSMENTS.

Those who have special water assessments levied against them can save six percent interest and aid the city by paying the amount of their assessments before November 1. Water mains have been laid quite extensively this year and the outlay of money for piping and labor has been great. Current bills have had to be met by the city and a large sum of money has been necessary to handle them. The sum of $60,000 was recently obtained to care for much of the expense. If those who can pay the special assessments would do so at their earliest convenience it is estimated by Mayor Welsh that about $15,000 would be obtained. This could be used to pay bills which will be presented before November 1. It is the desire of the mayor to start the water extension work next year with a margin of funds on hand so that there will be no delay in the extensive program that will have to be carried out to meet the increasing demand for service.

Most of the work this year has been done in sections where building either has been started or will be early next spring. This area comprises most of the territory in the greatest population.

Next spring it will be necessary to extend water mains to the section of the city contiguous to the new industrial development in the southern part of the city in addition to the other sections which will be built up.

VALUABLE INSTRUCTION.

The value of the agricultural course in the local high school is proven by the fact that a Rock county farmer was led to add better stock and equipment to his farm after his son had become interested in the things taught him. This is but a single instance of progress resulting from the proper encouragement and teaching of the youth of the land.

Mr. West, who has charge of the agriculture department, is given credit for the success of the course as he has that faculty of getting the interest of the boys aroused in a way that brings the best in them out. The state inspector has complimented Mr. West for the good work he has done. We who are striving for the best results in agriculture should lend every aid to encourage Mr. West and his pupils.

ENCOURAGING CROP FIGURES.

Encouragement is given by the government's September crop report. It fulfills expectations. The total wheat crop is estimated now at 923,000,000 bushels, second largest in our history, but about 100,000,000 bushels under the record crop of 1915. The total yield of corn is now fixed at 2,595,000,000 bushels, an in-

"No," say I, "that isn't so!
Right this minute you don't know Just the reason for the slap crease in last year's crop, but below the 3,000,000,000 bushels which our corn crops nowadays must exceed.

The yield of oats will exceed 1,225,000,000 bushels, which is less than the crops of 1915, 1917, and 1918.
These figures do not indicate a crop failure, but the needs of the whole world are so great that the shrinkage from the estimated figures given out early in the season is noticeable.

Sketches From Life :- By Temple

Dack With a Different Kind of a Fish Story

Survivors of J. Barleycorn

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—
"Bourbon" liquor everywhere, but not a drop to drink!"

This may be the lament of the Ancient Mariner be modernized. For the country is full of booze, yet illegally. If all the liquor stored in the bonded warehouses of the United States was divided among the citizens of voting age in this republic, each of us would get about three gallons.
This is no guess or estimate. It is a solemn fact, vouched for by the internal revenue bureau.

On the first of last August, one month after the drought fell upon the land, there were 7,212,162 gallons of distilled spirits in the bonded warehouses, according to the internal revenue bureau. This grand array of spirits included whiskey, brandy, rum, gin and alcohol, enough to put the whole world on a spree.

In addition to the liquor in warehouses, the bureau estimates that there were between eight and ten million gallons of first-class liquor on the shelves of the thousands of dealers throughout the country, when they were forced to close their doors under the war-time prohibition. Although some of this may have been surreptitiously withdrawn to wet the whistles of some faithful old customers, the majority of it still remains in the hands of the dealers who are hoping for a chance to reopen their doors before January 16, 1920, when the distillation amend-

Dealers Hope for Reprieve.
And as the dealers are hoping for a reprieve of a few months to dispose of their stock, so are the distillers who have millions of dollars worth of goods stored in the bonded warehouses. If they don't get rid of their stock, they will be left with a big loss. The distillation amendment sets in they will have a slim chance of disposing of it after that time. They won't be able to export it and their only hope is to be allowed to sell it for medicinal purposes.

A merry fight is being waged between the wet and the dry over the proposition of a hiatus between wartime and national prohibition. The dry forces claim that there is not a chance in the world of lifting the prohibition ban before January 16, and the war-time prohibition act states plainly that the ban cannot be raised until the complete termination of the war and the demobilization of the army. It would be impossible to do this before that date, according to prohibition leaders in the capital.

The wet side claims that the interpretation of the war-time prohibition act, regarding this particular feature, is up to the president, and that he can decide the demobilization of the army accomplished any time he likes. They argue that it is a grave injustice not to give the dealers an opportunity to dispose of the stock they have on hand.

Treaty Must Be Ratified First.
It is the opinion of the president that the war-time prohibition cannot be revoked until the peace treaty has been ratified by the senate and demobiliza-tion is completed. That is the big stumbling block in the way of letting the country go on one more year before it becomes permanently dry. It is guess work to try to determine whether or not the peace treaty will be ratified before the closing of the year.

If there is a hiatus between wartime and national prohibition, the country will witness a period similar to that of the war-time prohibition of the wet period on July 1. The internal revenue bureau is authority for the statement that during the six months before war-time prohibition went into effect approximately thirty million gallons of whiskey alone were taken out of the bonded warehouses. A great deal of this liquor was hoarded by those who could afford to buy it at fancy prices.

Miners Table Motion to Endorse League

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Cleveland, O., Sept. 17.—The coperation of the United Mine Workers of America today voted down a resolution endorsing the league of nations and calling upon the senate to ratify it without amendment and without further delay. And subsequently voted to table the entire subject. The debate showed a wide range of opinion for and against the motion to table the subject was carried largely on the argument that the peace treaty had now become a political issue on which a labor convention should not be called upon to take action.

Crown Prince back in Germany, Is Rumor

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Potsdam, Sept. 18.—A rumor again has reached Berlin by way of Zurich that former Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm of Germany has returned to his native country.

Officials of the bureau are of the opinion that if the prohibition ban was lifted for two months the distillers would not be able to get rid of more than one-half of the stock in the concentration system of the country, they claim, could not handle so much liquor in that short period of time.

If all the liquor that is now held in bond were sold before next January the government would derive almost a half million dollars in revenue. There is a federal tax of $6.40 on each gallon of liquor. This tax is not assessed upon distilled spirits withdrawn from bonded warehouses
as there is not a good foreign market for the war-time prohibition act, distillers are permitted to export liquor without paying any tax upon it.

Concession to Manufacturers.
This concession was granted to the manufacturers of wet goods to allow them to get rid of some of their product, but it did not help greatly
as there is not a good foreign market for American liquor. It seems that foreigners have not developed a taste for America's favorite brands. This can be seen in the report of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce for July, the first month in which liquor was exported after prohibition set in. The report shows that there were 381,893 gallons of distilled spirits exported, having a total value of $439,478. In 1919, when the total was 55,000 gallons of bourbon whiskey worth $155,738, and 11,000 gallons of rye whiskey valued at $55,000.

It is possible to buy American liquor in London for less than he tax that is paid on it in this country.
American bourbon whiskey can be purchased by foreigners for less than $8 a gallon, and the best grade of American whiskey is sold in London for about $6 a gallon. Exportation of the distilled spirits can only be carried on up to January 16, as the eighteenth amendment prohibits the exporting of liquor.

Retailer Can't Export.
The retailer who had a large supply of liquor on hand the first of January, said he didn't know, but intimated that if he were a distiller (there wouldn't be any liquor in bond in this country after that date. He would ship every gallon of liquor in the country to Glasgow and store it there in huge warehouses. This, he says, could be done rather cheaply, but the government would lose the revenue.

With a fortune tied up in the vast supply of liquor that is in the country, it is no wonder that the retailer with no outlet whatever for it, the temptation of the opportunity to practice bootlegging, and hence the difficulty, expense and loss of life involved in enforcing prohibition, will be multiplied many fold.

Printers Threaten to Strike for More Money

New York, Sept. 17.—Officials of the "big six," the local union of printers, whose demands for an increase of $14 a week in all present wages were refused by the employment by October 1 of a 14 hour week have been met by a threat on the part of the periodical publishers to suspend publication or to move their plants to western cities where they will be free of labor "radicalism," announced their willingness to arbitrate the question of higher pay.

ANTI-DRY CRUSADE

London.—The anti-Prohibition League is preparing a plan of campaign as a counter-thrust to the anticipated activities of the prohibitionists. A special appeal is being made to the supporters of the league who possess wide local influence to aid in the work of organizing local committees in the principal provincial centers, in order to allay public alarm and restore public confidence.

Q. If an American soldier marries a French girl and comes back to the states without his wife, does he have to get a divorce to marry again?
P. K.

A. An American soldier who marries a French girl and then returns to this country without his wife, would have to obtain a divorce from the girl in France before he could marry again.

Q. How shall I go about finding the value of a very old bible which I possess? S. S.

A. The nearest chief librarian, or some reliable antiquarian authority. Only an expert could give an opinion, after seeing it.

Q. I have several acres of good lowland birch. I should like to know if its best value is for cordwood. M. F.

A. On account of this wood being used so extensively for furniture, you can undoubtedly market it to much better advantage than to sell it as fire wood.

Q. In which was the best record made, taking troops over or bringing them home? T. H. G.

A. The record of the war in carrying troops to France was July, 1918, when 10,000 a day, or 300,000 for the month, were disembarked. The record for bringing troops home exceeded the outflow, reaching 320, 000 in May, 1919.

Q. Please tell me which was the fastest-shooting machine gun used by the Americans in the late war, and how many shots it fired per minute.
J. J.

A. The light Browning automatic fired about 600 shots per minute, has this record.

Q. Please tell me how to get weeds and grass out of a gravel driveway, and keep them out.
B. P. S.

A. In places where it is desired to exterminate all plant growth, salt can be used in the form of hot brine.
The solution should be strong enough to form crystals on the surface. To be most effective this salt should be applied in hot weather, with perfectly dry ground.

Q. Where do we get the word
"bosh"? T. B.

A. This is a Turkish word meaning empty. It was first applied to anything that was nonsensical or trashy.

MANNERS IN SPAIN.

For all that Spain is a far less progressive nation than the United States, it is a much pleasanter country in which to travel second or third class—"tourist" class, as it is enthusiastically called in this country.

Take for example the matter of lunch. The Spanish peasant on a journey does not, like an American farmer, produce an ugly shoe box full of chunks of bread and meat, which he devours without a glance at anyone else. The Spaniard carries his lunch in a bottle, which he broaches which is in itself a delight. The waklet probably contains a round loaf of bread, some stewed meat, and a big leather bottle full of wine, with perhaps some sort of sweet meat for dessert.

When he has spread his repast, with magnificent gesture, he invites all present to share it. Everyone, as a matter of course, politely refuses.
But when the meal has been finished, and the leather bottle is broached, the invitation will be repeated, and this time it is proper to accept. All in the seats nearby will take a sip of the excellent beverage, showing considerable skill in drinking from the leather container. Thus friendships are formed and strengthened.
The same train will very likely be gladdened by the presence of one boy or girls on their way to market, all very neat and clean, and each will have a little bouquet of flowers, usually red carnations, which she will tie to the rack above her head.

Spain is always hospitable and always picturesque.

Voice of the People

In the absence of the editor, who was confined to his home by illness, an article in the Voice of the People column appeared recently in which accusations were made against a city official. The article should not have been published and would not have been under ordinary circumstances. Investigation has been made and it has been found that the writer used a nom de plume in submitting the article. It also has been found that the city official is not acquainted with the writer, and under the circumstances the accusations appear to be without foundation.

The official against whom many supposed the imputations in the article were directed, is of good character and high standing in this community and nothing could be further from the truth than the references made in the article. The Gazette will set on foot an investigation of the matter and not in bringing the guilty party to answer for the offense if there is any law that reaches the case.

The Voice of the People column is set to all readers who have constructive opinions to offer, but cannot be used for silly personal controversies.—Editor.

$50 FOR SHILLING OF BEER
London.—It would be cheaper for you in the long run to pay for your beer. Magistrate Wilberforce told two railroad employes caught drinking beer from one of a number of barrels they were loading on a truck. They took about a shilling's worth and were fined $25 each.

Feel Glide Winning Many Followers of the Jazz

New York.—The Feel Glide is the dancing circles here and it is beginning to threaten the popular jazz which hitherto has had the largest following. The name of the newest dance is about the best description of it. The dancers glide along the floor with sliding steps in which the feet are never raised either at the heel or toe. The dancers gyrate in sinuous turns and twists in time with the music which is a combination of jazz and minor chords.

MOTHER OF 20 FINED

London.—The old woman who lived in a shoe had nothing on a Kingston mother who was arraigned and fined $1.25 recently because of the irregular attendance of her children at school.

"I am the mother of twenty brats," the woman pleaded, "and sometimes I overlook one or two of them in the rush." The magistrate reduced the fine by half and expressed sympathy for the defendant.

THE HEOTIC FLUSH

No human being can graysay that it is a woman's duty to be self-adoring as possible. If she happens to be inadequately endowed with natural charms, surely no human being will fault upon her use of bouillon, cream, or rouge. It would be very illogical to approve of rings or necklaces or other adornments yet condemn the use of powder and rouge. It is all a question of good taste. If a woman can apply these ornaments artistically, that is, so skilfully that observers are not too greatly impressed by the ornaments, it is indeed laudable to criticize her. It is hard to tell offhand nowadays whether a hectic flush is a symptom of a sign of a defective mind.

Persons with tuberculous well advanced often show a hectic flush, an abnormal redness about the cheeks and nose. Anemic young women, irrespective of the disease of which the anemia is a symptom, are likely to show a similar flush when nervous or excited.

Education from any cause removes that padding of subcutaneous fat which in health gives the skin, particularly the skin of the face, a healthy glow. The skin, when the fat is removed, is like a piece of blotting paper, and the color of the skin is a blend of blood red and fat yellow. Remove the yellow and you have a hectic flush. The skin of the face is a blotting paper, and the color of the skin is a blend of blood red and fat yellow. Remove the yellow and you have a hectic flush. The skin of the face is a blotting paper, and the color of the skin is a blend of blood red and fat yellow. Remove the yellow and you have a hectic flush.

In some types of anemia there is no loss of flesh. The subcutaneous fat layer is retained through months and years of illness, and the fat shines through the skin, giving it a yellow or greenish complexion.

In modern anemia, as from insufficient open air exercise, insufficient exposure to sunlight, the abuse of cathartics, the habitual taking of coal tar pain-killers, medicines, too refined food, and the use of laxatives, the skin is pale and the color of the skin is a blend of blood red and fat yellow. Remove the yellow and you have a hectic flush. The skin of the face is a blotting paper, and the color of the skin is a blend of blood red and fat yellow. Remove the yellow and you have a hectic flush.

Now they know what a hectic flush is.

She Married an Average Man

By ZOE BECKLEY.

It is not always easy at first, especially you get the habit it grows easier and easier, buting all bounds of reason and common sense, utterly and unnecessarily. Here am I, a sensible, intelligent woman, married eight days to a man I know loves me, and whom I truly love, tormenting myself into a nervous fit because of Jim—my nice, old, kind-hearted, honest Jim—got a letter with a green border addressed in a woman's handwriting. And didn't explain about it. That was the point that vexed me into a nervous fit and a green border.

And if he hadn't got another one just like it today I doubt if I ably would have let the thing rattle and tickle my nerves. I'm a sensible woman I am—we all are—until we shake ourselves from the "possessive" attitude of mind to the "social" attitude.

"For heaven's sake, Jim, tell me, before I die of jealousy who is your pale-green-bordered correspondent?" I cried, nuzzling my concern under a show of facetiousness. Jim laughed a one-noted yowl of real amusement and tossed the letter across the tea table to me.

"Dear Mrs. Salisbury," it read. "Confirming my note of yesterday, I am happy to advise you that you may have the five-room bungalow at the figure you name, $80, if you will take a year's lease. Simply send check covering first month's rent, and it will be time enough to make the final arrangement when you return from your trip. Needless to add, I send greatest regards to you and best wishes to you both. Sincerely, Cornelia Tompkinson."

"There was nothing to do," I climbed around the table and hid my face in his neck as much to hide my own awkwardness as to mumble my thanks and joy at getting the Tompkinson bungalow.

This shall be a lesson to me. I must not start my married life at all ways on the lookout for something to hurt my feelings or to be resentful about. I have always been susceptible, and when I read that letter I was in my place. I'm a sensible woman I am—we all are—until we shake ourselves from the "possessive" attitude of mind to the "social" attitude.

I'm disgusted with myself, truly. The only excuse I can offer is that marriage has gone a little to my head. I'm a sensible woman I am—we all are—until we shake ourselves from the "possessive" attitude of mind to the "social" attitude.

Jim actually belongs to me, or, rather, has singled me out from all the women he knows to share his life, for, of course, no person ever belongs to any other person. It seems so wonderful and so precious! The fact that I am so loved and have a claim of any sort on him made my very spirit shudder.

Probably when I grow more used to having him, and his everyday activities, I shall be able to manage the necessary things. Harder at first, easier in the end, when I am used to him, I shall be able to manage the necessary things. Harder at first, easier in the end, when I am used to him, I shall be able to manage the necessary things.

It is not always easy at first, especially if you have already gotten the automatic "don't" habit. Instead of forbidding without thinking, you will have to stop and think. "Is there any reason why I should forbid?" And we all, by nature, prefer not to think.

But in the end it will surely be easier both for the children and yourself. Get the habit of reading the classified ads—it will pay you.

HOUSE OF HEROES
Paris.—Of 85 tenants living in an apartment house in the ancient and popular quarter of the Faubourg du Temple, 25 were killed in action, according to the war records. A marble slab has been erected in memory of the fallen heroes. It bears the "roll of honor" with the following inscription:

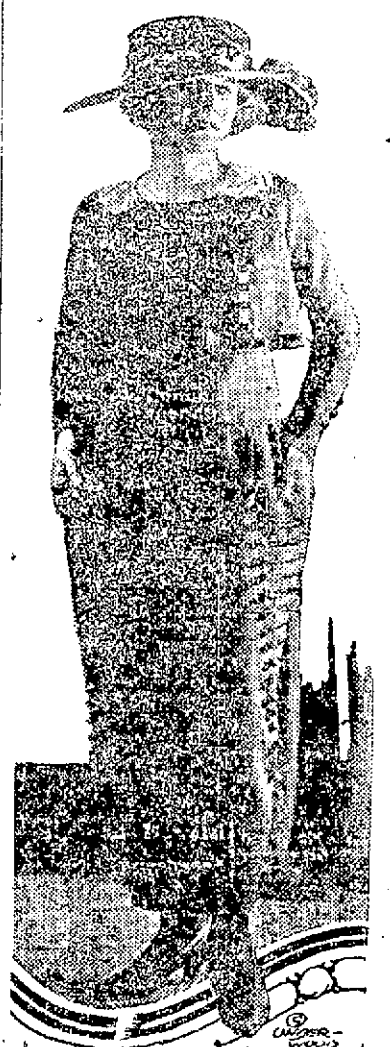

"Never forget the heroes who have fallen for the defense of the Mother Country and the liberty of the world."

THE AUTO Matic DON'T.
Beware of the automatic "don't." That "beware" is meant especially for parents, but all who have anything to do with children may come in on it if they choose.

You know, of course, what I mean by the automatic "don't"—the careless prohibition that "don't" or "no" because there is really any need for it, but because "don't" is the natural thing to say to a child.

ETON STYLE FROCK IS VERY YOUTHFUL

By ELOISE.

The girl who is getting ready to leave home for her first year at college or boarding school is probably very busy now in the midst of farewells and shopping expeditions. It is really hard to tell which side is enjoying most the parting. Certainly the girl who is leaving is enjoying most the parting. Certainly the girl who is leaving is enjoying most the parting.

This chic little frock is just the thing for the youthful miss who needs more clothing than a woolen one-piece frock for school days. It is a snappy little Eton model with many covered buttons for trimming. Silk bands are also used according to the fall dictates of fashion. Many horizontal stripes are used on the sleeves with buttons at the end of each strip.

The pockets on the hips help to give the new lines which are coming into vogue and mark the passing of the hipless days. Braiding is also used in novel design on the basque-like blouse. A small, round collar of satin lace gives a delicate touch to the neckline.

The large drooping brimmed picture hat with its wealth of satin flowers about the crown and its little ostrich tip perched daintily on the side.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please tell me if it is perfectly all right to accept money from your future husband and help him buy your wedding clothes? I have been married from overseas and when our marriage to take place at once, but as I have not my trousseau complete am asking what to do.

It is not "perfectly" all right for a girl to accept money from her future husband, but it is sometimes done. It would be better to marry without a trousseau and to buy clothes after marriage.

I think, however, if you are working it would be better to wait until you are in a position to buy a simple trousseau yourself.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 15 years old and have been keeping company with a young man I don't like very well. He asked to come to see me. I told him he could not. I love another young man more than any one I ever saw. My father and mother do not care to have me keep company and said I could not marry until I was 20.

There is another young man to whom I wrote until about three weeks ago. He still writes to me, but I do not add my letters although he seems to care a great deal for me. Please tell me what to do.

STOP GOING WITH BOYS ENTIRELY for two or three years. You are of an age that it would be far better to think about school work and your friends. Your parents are right in not wanting you to marry until you are 20 years old.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 17 years old and in my senior year in high school. I am now going with a boy two years my senior who goes to college and for whom I care very much. I have gone with him for two years.

side is all that is needed to turn the frock into a suitable dress for afternoon or mainline wear. Size 60 minutes at five to 10 pounds.

CUCUMBER PINCHES.—Place in a hot oven from six to eight minutes. Peel, remove seeds, and pack in flat layers. Do not add any liquid. Sterilize 35 minutes in hot water bath.

PEPPER FLUSH.—Two dozen green bell peppers, two dozen red bell peppers, two dozen green onions, also put through the grinder. Cover all with boiling water, let stand 10 minutes, drain, cover with cold water and let stand 10 minutes. Drain and add three tablespoons salt, and cup ground sugar, one cup vinegar and cook for 15 minutes.

Remove from the bottle, place in fresh water, and carefully cut off the top of each pepper, saving the caps. Then fill the jar with another layer of peppers. Remove the seeds and white sections. Soak in clear, cold water for two hours.

SAFETY MANGO PEPPER.—The mango pepper is a mild, sweet pepper, yellow and wax in appearance. Soak the peppers in brine for 24 hours.

PLAGUE OF LOCUSTS.
Rio de Janeiro.—Myriads of locusts appeared here in the vicinity recently, being so numerous that in some cases sections of the city were beleaguered. Reports stated that farming and garden districts were damaged and trains moved with great difficulty.

(1) Do you think I am old enough to trust myself to marry him? How old should one be before she considers seriously the question of engagement?

(2) My friend's parents do not like me, although I always try to do what is right. Is it proper for me to let him come to see me when they object?

(3) When my friend takes me to a dance is it proper for me to dance with anyone besides him?

(1) I do not think you are old enough to marry. Wait until you are at least 20 before you consider an engagement.

(2) Yes, it is all right for you to let him come. His parents probably feel that no girl is good enough for him.

(3) You should not give your escort more than several dances.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a boy 18 years of age and have been going with a girl 20 years old for almost a year, and I have loved her dearly. She seems to think a good deal of me, too. But of late it seems as if my love has faded away. We are not engaged, but were speaking of the matter. I haven't given her a ring or anything and she hasn't made the vow.

Now I don't love her as I did and don't think we could live a happy life together, but she seems to love me yet. Would it be right for me to tell her I don't love her any longer or to go on and marry her? Or should I just quit going with her gradually and go with some other girl I love more?

To break off gradually is probably the best way. Start to go with other girls, too. When she realizes this, tell her I don't love her any longer. To stop the criticism the customer submits and pays for the shampoo and the barber also expects a tip.

Drain carefully. Stuff with the following relish, being careful not to press it in too tightly. Place top on the pepper and make secure with two or three wooden toothpicks. Pack as many stuffed peppers as can be placed in the jar without crushing. Cover with vinegar. Process for 15 minutes at simmering point. Complete the seal.

RECIPES FOR A DAY.
Swiss Steak.—Have round steak cut about one inch thick. Pound into this two tablespoons flour, season. Place in a hot skillet, cover with oil, sliced onion and one sliced tomato. Cover tightly and let simmer over a very slow fire for one hour.

Chopped Potatoes.—Place thinly sliced potatoes in baking dish one inch thick. Season with salt and pepper and cover with a thin layer of cheese. Place on top another layer of potatoes, seasoning and cheese, pour over enough milk to barely cover potatoes and bake in moderate oven one hour.

PLAGUE OF LOCUSTS.
Rio de Janeiro.—Myriads of locusts appeared here in the vicinity recently, being so numerous that in some cases sections of the city were beleaguered. Reports stated that farming and garden districts were damaged and trains moved with great difficulty.

THE TEST
Jack—Your heart is as hard as glass.
Jill—Try a diamond on it.

ENFORCED SHAMPOOS
London.—Some local barbers have adopted a form of profiteering which achieves success by a surprise method. A customer wants a shave and a shave only. As soon as he is seated the barber starts a monologue that increases in intensity. The shave is finished and a torrent of words and while the customer is groping for a reply the shaving towel is whisked from his neck, a larger one is placed over his shoulders and he feels a soapy fluid trickling through his hair. Exasperation is useless. It is withheld by slighting comments on the dress of the customer's hair. To stop the criticism the customer submits and pays for the shampoo and the barber also expects a tip.

BRODIE WILL PITCH FOR JANES AGAINST M'COY CLAN SUNDAY

Eddie Brodie, late of the Moosejaw club in the Western Canada league, will leave for the Janes in their last Shore league game of the season against the McCoy All Stars at the fair grounds here Sunday. Brodie will receive his offerings. At Miller, Fond du Lac youngster in the Northwestern league, will cover short, either Gorman or Solby, a new local find, on the initial sack. At second will be seen Eddie Aaron, formerly of the Pittsburgh club in the National league, while O'Leary, who played with the Manitowishiope champs until a few weeks ago, will cover third.

Biglow and Conroy, two Samson lights, with Keith, Milwaukee star, will take care of the garden. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock. Either Stoney McGlynn or Schaefer will umpire.

"Y" BASKETBALL COURT ENLARGED

Enlargement of the basketball court at the "Y," lessening the possibility of out-of-bounds delays, thus making for faster and more exciting games this winter, has just been completed by Physical Director W. Fraig. The court now has been refitted in red to distinguish it from the old and smaller one. The extensions, both in width and in length, are sufficient to make the court practically standard size.

The width of the court has been increased three feet 18 inches on either side, making it 43 feet 8 inches wide. Instead of the two-foot semi-circular extensions under the baskets used last year, the entire court has been lengthened two feet on each end, making it 65 feet long. The minimum size of a standard court is 60 by 35 feet and the maximum 90 by 50.

"POP" GEERS HAS DRIVEN LAST RACE

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 19.—It is probable that Edward F. (Pop) Geers, "grand old man" of the trotting turf, has driven his last race. Despite his grit and determination in declaring he will "be out in a week or two and driving again," physicians here fear a broken collar bone and slight concussion of the brain in Geers' sixty-ninth year might force the veteran driver to keep off the track.

Cincinnati to Have Boxing During Series

Cincinnati, Sept. 19.—Mayor John Galvin, who during the war announced that no more boxing bouts would be held in Cincinnati while he was mayor, has lifted the ban and a show will be put on during the world's series. The mayor announced he would appoint a boxing commission within a few days.

The first bout will probably see Harry Greb in the ring. The mayor announced that Jack Dempsey will be barred from the ring in this city as the former announced that he will not tolerate prize fights.

The mayor's action followed plans made by business men. A new organized athletic club composed of representative business men may be awarded the first permit.

REHBERG'S

Autumn Style in Worth-While Clothes For Well Dressed Men

The past week has made a great change in our stock of clothing. Chilly evenings and knowledge of colder weather ahead lends new interest to this exposition of fall styles. The man who makes early selections is wise. Regardless of anything that can be said to the contrary, there is and will be all this year a great—a very great—shortage of merchandise. Our long experience enables us to know conditions and we are convinced that certain assortments will be exhausted long before the season reaches its height.

Make early selections—you will not regret it.

The New Styles in Men's Suits

There are two button plain double breasted suits, waist line suits made double breasted and with a belt; also single breast waist line suits without a belt and for the conservative man the ever popular form following model.

The cloths are selected with great care—just as we always do—cheviots, tweeds, cashmeres, worsteds and fine durable mixtures. The colors run through various shades of brown, green, grey and blue and of course an ample selection of fancy stripes and mixtures. The tailoring is up to the usual standard of Rehberg clothes—

For years this store has served thousands of people in Janesville and vicinity.

During all this time our aim has been to sell good merchandise at a popular price, figuring to build our business on a large volume of sales, having each sale return and that is saying the most that can be said about any clothes.

Prices are conservative—and well worth while

Top Coats

The average well dressed man objects to sinking his personality and to wear a style just because "it is the fashion." A style good for one man is not suitable to every type of man. So we show several distinct effects in our efforts to make every man appear at his best.

Rehberg's Great Shoe Department

Featuring for the first time tomorrow a beautiful display of Women's Button Boots, Paris models, choice of all black kid in finished or dull effect, patent boots with grey kid uppers, Louis heels, Milo buttons; a chic, dressy boot that will be very much in demand. Popularly priced—the Rehberg way.

Other big shoe values for every member of the family.

us a small profit thus making a good business on the whole.

That this plan has amply succeeded may be judged by the immense volume of business we do yearly and by the manner in which we please our patrons.

Remember, Rehberg prices are always popular prices.

The Heavens in October

(By DR. C. S. BRANNIN)
Columbia University Observatory Staff.

Uranus is the only one of the planets which makes its appearance in the sky this month. All the other planets, with the exception of Mercury, are morning stars. Mercury is to be seen near the sun to be seen at 5 a. m. on the 1st of the month. The early morning star is to be seen in the east at 5 a. m. on the 1st of the month. The early morning star is to be seen in the east at 5 a. m. on the 1st of the month.

Unfortunately, too, Uranus is not much of an attraction, either to the naked eye or even in the telescope. Though really a very large body, it appears only as bright as a star of the sixth or seventh magnitude. It is thus only on the border line of naked-eye observation. Uranus shines only by reflected sunlight. It was not known to the ancient Greek astronomers, for, without the aid of powerful optical instruments, it can not be distinguished from the neighboring fixed stars, even under the best of observing conditions. If it were possible to observe its motions through the fixed-star field, this would immediately inform us of the fact that it was not a fixed star, but one of the company of "wanderers," or planets. But they could not attempt this with their measuring instruments, which were in themselves excellent, but lacking the telescope. The first one to recognize the true nature of this planet was William Herschel, who announced its discovery in 1781. He named it Georgium Sidus, the Throne of George, in honor of King George III, but this name died an early and well-deserved death.

Observations of Algol, the remarkable variations in brightness of the "demon" star, Algol, the second brightest in the constellation of Perseus. This star, which is really a double star, one of the components periodically eclipsing the other and thus diminishing the total brightness of the pair as seen from earth. The minimum of brightness, the least in light is about two-thirds, bringing the star down from second to third magnitude.

Algol can be observed passing through the minimum six times in October as follows: Oct. 1 at 12:20 a. m., Oct. 3 at 9:10 p. m., Oct. 6 at 5 p. m., Oct. 23 at 10:50 p. m., Oct. 26 at 7:40 p. m., Oct. 29 at 4:30 p. m. These figures are taken by permission of the American Astronomical Union.

To the average eye the group seems to consist of seven stars, forming what might be called a small dipper, six of the stars are easily seen, but the seventh may be somewhat elusive. However, it can be seen on good nights, and even as in as 12 or 13 have been counted by people with sharp eyesight. Of course, the telescope reveals many more.

The brighter stars of this subgroup must be of tremendous luminosity for the group can not be nearer the earth than 10,000,000 astronomical units—10,000,000 times 33,996,000 miles. They must therefore be equal to a hundred suns merged into one. Our sun at that distance would be less than insignificant.

It is a very interesting fact that longer-exposure photographs show the large stars of the Pleiades surrounded by a bright nebulous haze, which is now known as the "Pleiades Nebula."

The word Capella means she-goat; we would hardly be inclined to name the most beautiful star in the heavens after so humble a domestic animal as the goat. The he-goat is present in the heavens as Capella, the star, and will be found in the southern heavens where Uranus is.

Of course, in the ancient, as still in many half-civilized people today, the she-goat is an important source of food and therefore no doubt worthy of having a place among the stars. At any rate, Capella is the fifth brightest star in the sky, the third brightest visible from these northern latitudes and next to Vega in Lyra, the brightest star north of the celestial equator. Intrinsically, it is calculated to be nearly 70 times as great a sun as our own. It is a star of the main sequence, which is from its through space at a rate of about 20 miles per second. It is pure white in color, and its spectrum is practically the same as that of the sun.

The Stars and the Weather. The unusual weather of the past summer and winter accounts, no doubt, for the very large number of inquiries received by us as to the possibility of a connection between celestial phenomena and terrestrial weather. Thus far, in spite of many attempts to do so, no connection has been established between these two. It is not possible to prophesy the weather from the positions or movements of the celestial bodies. While philosophically it must be true that the sun, moon and planets have some effect, however slight, upon the earth's physical condition, it is so small as to be entirely absorbed by conditions of local winds, clouds, and even the moon, upon which is blamed, is innocent of any noteworthy effect upon the weather. It is really very unfortunate, for nothing would be better than to be able to prophesy weather with the same exactness with which the astronomer can prophesy lunar phases and eclipses.

GOOD-ROADS MOVEMENT
London.—As a result of the great boom in the use of automobiles and motor trucks since the war, the County Councils' Association is organizing a Roads and Transport Congress and Exhibition to arouse action in the movement of motor highways. The Congress and Exhibition will be held at the Royal Agricultural Hall, London, during the week of November 20 to 27.

1,500,000,000 FOR HOUSES.
London.—The London county council has prepared a scheme for the erection of 20,000 houses at a total cost of $1,500,000,000, including $25,000,000 for slum clearing. On the first 10,000 houses there will be a deficit of $24 a year per house, and on the remaining 10,000 a deficit of $16 a year per house. The ultimate annual housing deficit is estimated at $6,000,000 a year.

Around the State

French Girls at Lawrence.
Appleton.—Two French girls, Suzanne Moreau Khams, and Germaine Moreau Khams, registered at Lawrence college Tuesday. They are two of the 126 French girls sent by that government for further education in the United States. The girls arrived in New York Saturday. Both are college graduates. Shu-lan Chang and Yu-Shang Hung of Tsing Hai college, Peking, China, are expected to enroll Thursday. Several of the soldiers have expressed a preference for Lawrence under the soldier's education bonus act. As there are 2,000 soldiers who desire to continue their education, it is expected that Lawrence will get 200 of them, although it is a question as to where they will be housed as already all of the dormitories and fraternity houses are filled, and students are crowding restaurants at meal time. Prof. Charles A. Miele has been added to the faculty as instructor in physics. He comes from Oliver college, Michigan.

Workmen Leave City.
Manitowoc.—The strike situation at Two Rivers has resulted in the issuing of a call for a special session of the county board to take action with regard to deputies for the sheriff. It is reported that the factory owners are planning for a reopening of their plants owing to the large exodus of workmen from the city. The latest reports place the figure as 500. The sheriff has already secured jobs in other cities, Racine, Kenosha, Milwaukee, Janesville, and Hartford with some few going to Clintonville. The sheriff asked that the board take some action toward providing him with funds for the use in hiring deputies.

Manitowoc Pastor Resigns.
Manitowoc.—Rev. George Grether, pastor of the German Reformed church, has resigned his position as pastor and has accepted the position as house father and superintendent of a college at Franklin, Sheboygan county.

New Freighter Launched.
Manitowoc.—The Lake Gadsden, the first of the new type of ocean going oil burning freighter to be constructed for the Emergency Fleet corporation at the plant of the Manitowoc Ship Building company, has been launched. The Lake Gadsden is the same dimensions as other freighters constructed here but is equipped with all burning boilers and has a larger freight tonnage displacement owing to this fact.

C. of C. Elects Officers.
Menasha.—J. D. Lake was elected president of the Menasha Chapter of Commerce. Other officers are: vice president, George A. Loesch; treasurer, Ben Playright, and secretary, John Chapman.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

A LITTLE SPICE O' LIFE.
A friend of ours named Joe Flynn rushed in all out of breath and gasped: "I believe I have lost my pocketbook. I believe I have been frisked." He was very much excited. And we tried to quiet him. "Have you searched?" "All your pockets?" "I have gone through every one. Right or ten times except one." "Which one?" "The left hip pocket." "I haven't searched that one." "Why not?" "I've queried." "Well, I'll tell you," he said. "I haven't tried that pocket and I'm not going to try it. Because if I should search that last remaining pocket and the pocketbook shouldn't be there, I would drop dead, that's all."

"You ought to speak that kid," said our neighbor to his wife. "He has been cutting up all during dinner. The wife replied: 'I'll not speak that boy on a full stomach.'"

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.
Some folks shake their heads at the fashions.
And view scant dresses with squeals.
They don't disturb me at my rations
Or keep me from my meals.

I scorn with such subjects to grapple;
Things might have been worse by some miles.
If I've hadn't eaten that apple,
I shudder to think of the styles.

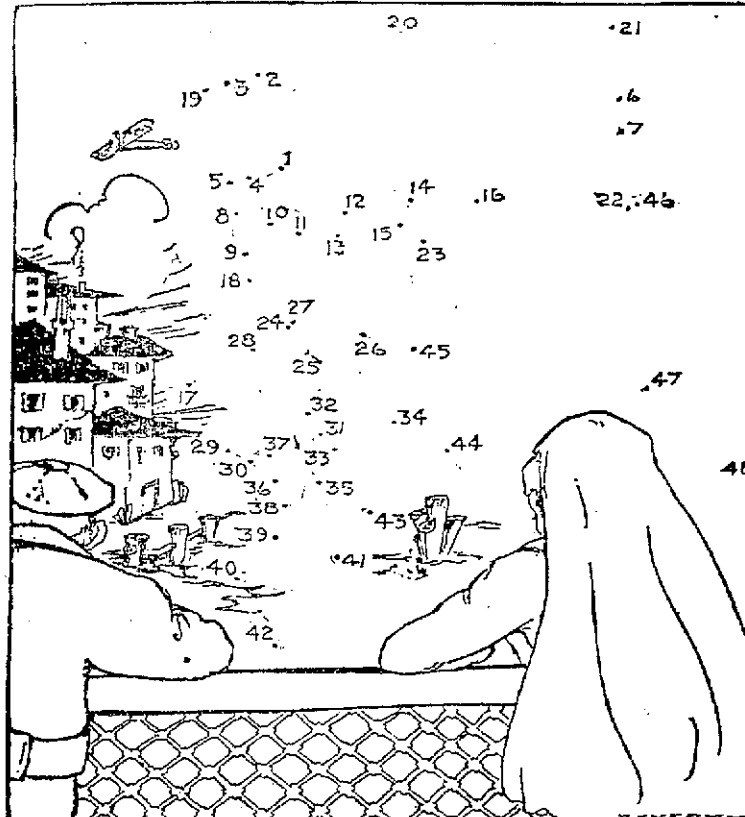

—W. S. A.
Al Evans, the popular mine host of a hotel on Long Island (location deleted by advertising department), went down the road one day and stuck up a large sign reading, "One-Half Mile to Evans' Hotel." The first man to arrive after the sign was up walked in from the distant town. "Al," he said, "that sign said it was a half-mile to your hotel from that point and I'll swear it is a good two miles."

"Well," drawled Al, "it's only a half-mile if you are coming in a good, fast car, but, of course, if you are walking it may be two miles."

A letter was 37 years, making a nine-block trip in Washington. It wouldn't be exactly fair to blame all that on Mr. Burleson.

Speaking of strikes, we are unqualifiedly in favor of shorter hours for campaign orators.

SIGNS OF APPROACHING AUTUMN IN THE CITY.
Women laying aside their furs.
Pyramids of torpid derbies and fedoras in the hat-surgeon's window waiting for their annual resuscitation.
"Hot chocolate" labels obstructing the view of electric fixtures and black-faced ingersolls in drug store windows.
The chestnut roaster's wobbly whistle at the corner, trying to tell you that the worms are done.
Aw, wait till the White Sox get hold of the Reds!
—R. Alexander Thomas.

THE DOT RED CROSS
By Clifford Leon Sherman
When the sun rose the next morning the transport was anchored at a port somewhere in France. Mildred found all of her fellow passengers crowded at the rail gazing at the unfamiliar view. There were quiet docks and everybody was very much interested. Fussy little taxi cabs were chugging around, apparently getting in the way. At last one of them, more cautious than the rest, stopped alongside and boarding preparations were made. The driver was run up alongside and the first person over the side was a French.

CARDINAL TAKES REST
New York, Sept. 18.—Cardinal Mercier spent a quiet day today at the residence of Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes. Tonight the cardinal will visit the Belgian bureau.

Boy Dies of Lockjaw
Neenah.—Francis Johnson, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, Neenah, died of lockjaw following injuries sustained from his heel being caught in the flywheel of a gas engine.

HOME ATMOSPHERE IN "Y," STEINER'S PLAN

Many changes in the Y. M. C. A. tending to develop a more home-like atmosphere both for dormitory men and general members are planned by Secretary J. A. Steiner to be carried out as soon as possible. It is planned to move the billiard and pool tables from the main lobby into the present reading room and an effort will be made to get away from the cold and barren effect which Secretary Steiner says now exists.

The northeast corner of the lobby will be partitioned off for a small office for Mr. Steiner, the present office to be used by the new business and industrial secretary, J. C. Keller.

Further improvements and changes contemplated will have to be delayed until after the big financial campaign planned for next month. Mr. Steiner states. Preliminary organization work for the drive will be commenced shortly.
